2. EDUCATIONAL AIMS OF THE PROGRAMME

The International Marketing programme aims to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of emerging themes and contemporary challenges that marketers face from increasingly interconnected and digitally linked marketplaces; the programme explores the strategies, policies and practices key to address these challenges in an international multi-cultural environment. Central to the programme is the development of personal and professional competence of students with an emphasis on responsible leadership and sustainable marketing practice in a multicultural international context.

The stated values of the International Marketing programme are to be intellectually challenging, vocationally relevant and to be responsive to student and industry needs. Given these values, the overall aim of the programme is to provide students with an intellectually challenging and vocationally relevant education to Masters level in the area of International Marketing that is not only internationally relevant but also truly global in its comprehensive coverage from branding to multi-channel communications, digital and social media marketing analytics, as well as strategic marketing planning to deliver customer value through innovation. This master degree will enhance student employability through participation in a wide-range of teaching and learning experiences including integrative case studies, group projects and presentations and industry speakers. Additionally, the standard one-year MSc International Marketing an optional two-year route is offered through adding a trimester of Professional Practice leading to MSc International Marketing (with Professional Practice) covering the same programme learning outcomes. The “with Professional Practice” two-year masters includes an additional trimester of professional practice prior to the final Research Project module giving students the opportunity to apply their learning and graduate with significant experience.

The programme aims to meet the needs of students who wish to pursue a career in marketing in an international setting. Students may come from a background of having studied a business related subject, who wish to gain a greater understanding of International Marketing to enhance their career opportunities. However, the programme will also be attractive to applicants who have studied non-business related subjects (e.g., engineering, social sciences, psychology, etc) at undergraduate level. The programme team believe the programme or modules within it will appeal to existing entrepreneurs and working managers and the team is keen for practitioners to apply. The programme welcomes applications through the Flexible Entry route involving Credit Transfer and RPL.

The primary aim of this programme is to provide a broad, analytical and integrative study of International Marketing. Specifically, the educational aims are stated as follows:

- To provide a differentiated Masters level learning experience that combines common and programme specific modules allowing student to benefit from the school's expertise in marketing, organisational ethics, personal and professional development and its niche strengths in areas of applied leadership and management as well as its international orientation and research culture
- To offer students opportunities to simultaneously develop critical thinking skills, knowledge of contemporary and sustainable marketing practices and the personal and entrepreneurial abilities necessary to gain graduate employment in a domestic or international setting
- To offer a broad spectrum of knowledge relating to marketing and to develop attitudes and skills necessary to succeed as a responsible, independent and professional
- To develop critical research skills necessary for the successful completion of a complex and independently designed research project
- To develop students in-depth, applied and integrated knowledge of contemporary marketing management with a national and global context
- To facilitate practical and creative skills development in key areas of marketing centring on consumer behaviour, marketing planning, branding, use of digital technologies as well as product and service innovation, sourcing and logistics
- To offer specialist in-depth insights into the marketing activities and strategies of international organisations spanning private, public and third sectors as well as business to business and business to consumer settings
- To provide a range of opportunities for market analysis and decision making in the areas of marketing strategy and communication
- To provide the knowledge and practical skills necessary to develop and implement a brand in an multichannel environment
