Studying the intersection of ethics and consumption in your doctoral research?

We warmly invite you to submit an application to participate in:

Ethics in Consumption: Interdisciplinary Perspectives Doctorial Colloquium

The Ethics in Consumption: Interdisciplinary Perspectives Doctorial Colloquium is open to enrolled doctoral students who are at any stage of their doctoral training and research. Entry will be on a competitive process as places will be limited.

The Ethics in Consumption: Interdisciplinary Perspectives Doctorial Colloquium will provide doctoral students with the opportunity to present their doctoral work to peers and faculty, and to receive feedback from a panel of expert researchers in a supportive forum. This doctoral colloquium will also feature presentations and mentoring by leading scholars in the multi-disciplinary fields of consumption ethics, including Dr Terry Newholm and Dr Alan Bradshaw. The Doctorial Colloquium (chaired by Professor Deirdre Shaw, Dr Andreas Chatzidakis, Dr Michal Carrington and Helen Goworek) also offers an opportunity for PhD students to get to know one another and build peer networks, interact with faculty, and improve their research ideas.

KEY INFORMATION:

Participation:
Participants will each be given 30 minutes for their presentation and 15 minutes for feedback and Q&A.
Academic Review: Participants’ proposals will be viewed by two scholars in the field of ethical consumption and feedback/critique will be provided to each participant after their presentation.

Key Dates & Locations:

Papers submission close: August 7th 2015

Authors notified of paper outcome: September 17th 2015

Doctoral Colloquium Date: October 29th 2015

Doctoral Colloquium Location: University of Glasgow

Doctoral Colloquium Costs: This doctoral colloquium is funded as part of the overall ESRC Seminar Series, thus participating doctoral students are not required to pay a registration or participation fee. Travel and accommodation costs incurred to attend the doctoral colloquium, however, must be covered by the doctoral student (or their institution). A limited number of travel grants will be made available for those students who would not be able to attend the doctoral colloquium otherwise. Please see details below.

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES:

Submissions are emailed to: Dr Michal Carrington (Michal.Carrington@unimelb.edu.au)

Students are to submit the following before: August 7th 2015.

- An extended abstract - maximum 5 pages (NOT including references and title page).
- The submissions will need to include a one page title page (not included in page count) including the following:
  - Title of Thesis
  - Overall Research Objective
  - List of Research Questions
  - Methodology (proposed or actual, depending on doctoral project progress)
Three key concerns or questions you would like reviewers to consider when they critique your proposal.

- Font: Times New Roman 12pt
- Margins: 2.5cm all sides
- Spacing: Single Spaced, with one blank line between paragraphs.
- Abstract: Maximum of 150 words

The Ethics in Consumption: Interdisciplinary Perspectives Doctorial Colloquium

Travel Grants:

A limited number of grants are available to assist full-time doctoral students who wish to attend the Colloquium and need funding for travel costs to do so. Submissions for grant funding requires a one-page justification for why funding is required, which is to be included with the proposal submitted. Selection will be based on proposal merit and justification of funding needs.